[Dear parents,] ?

Since normal hearing is an essential requirement for the development of speech and language, the hearing capacity of your newborn baby should be tested immediately after birth. The fundamental knowledge of language is acquired within the first two years of life.

Today, your baby's hearing screening revealed no conspicuous result.

Nevertheless, you should watch your baby's hearing capacity carefully. Should you assume that its hearing changes or impairs, please contact your paediatrician, an ear, nose and throat specialist or a paedaudiologic specialist. Frequent causes for a hearing reduction are otitis media or fluid behind the eardrum.

Today, your baby could not be screened.

We kindly ask you to arrange a new appointment for a hearing screening. Please contact your maternity ward or one of the institutions listed on the enclosure. Please bring the yellow examination booklet and be there in good time. Your child should be tired during the test. Therefore, please try to keep it awake while travelling. Please do not use any lotion or oil bath before the test.

Today, your baby's hearing screening revealed a conspicuous result.

It is important to know that this does not necessarily mean that your baby has a hearing loss. At this time, it only means that a re-test must be done to check the result.

We kindly ask you to immediately arrange an appointment with one of the institutions listed on the enclosure. The re-test should be done approx. two weeks after your discharge from hospital. Please mention that it is about a repeated hearing screening. Please bring the yellow examination booklet and be there in good time. Your child should be tired during the test. Therefore, please try to keep it awake while travelling. Please do not use any lotion or oil bath before the test.

[Dear parents,] ?

Since normal hearing is an essential requirement for the development of speech and language, the hearing capacity of your newborn baby should be tested immediately after birth. The fundamental knowledge of language is acquired within the first two years of life.

Today, your baby's hearing screening again revealed a conspicuous result.

It is important to know that this does still not necessarily mean that your baby has a hearing loss. A present hardness of hearing may be temporarily. But certainly a further detailed examination is inevitable. You should visit a phoniatric-paedaudiologic institution where the staff is specialized in speech and language development of small children in particular.

We kindly ask you to immediately arrange an appointment with one of the institutions listed on the enclosure. Please mention that it is about concluding diagnosis as the first screening and the re-screening both revealed conspicuous results. Please bring the yellow examination booklet and be there in good time. Your child should be tired during the test. Therefore, please try to keep it awake while travelling.
